Office

BY WILLIAM PHILLIP SIMMS (United Press Staff Correspondent) PARIS, July 21.—The pent-up under current of political hatred and strife which burst upon Paris with the fury of a storm following the murder of Gaston Calmette, editor of Le Figaro, all but again came to the surface today. It was during the trial of Mme. Joseph Caillaux, who shot the editor because of the bitter campaign he had waged against her husband and because she believed intimate letters he had written her before her marriage were to be published.

Read President's Statement

The direct cause was the deposition of Raymond Poincaré, president of France, read in court. This alone is an unprecedented procedure. In his deposition, the president said Caillaux, then minister of finance, came to his office and declared his belief that Calmette intended to publish these personal letters.

"If he does that I will kill him," Caillaux told the president.

When this was read by the clerk there was a restless movement throughout the court room, then low murmurs, gradually growing in volume, until President Judge Albanel sharply called for order and threatened to arrest the disturbers.

Caillaux himself was the principal witness today. It was after Mme.
Caillaux's visit to Judge Monier, when she was told that nothing could be done to prevent the publication of the letters by Calmette.

Mme. Caillaux arrived at the ministry at midday. Caillaux testified.
She asked what he proposed doing.
Threatened to "Smash Face"

"If that's the way things stand, I'll smash his face," Caillaux said he replied.

(The French slang expression "casser la gueule" might be meant to kill or merely what it says literally.)

"On the way home in the automobile my wife was evidently pondering my threat," continued Caillaux.
"She asked when I intended to carry out my threat. I said 'not today, but soon.'"

Louis Latzarus, news editor of the Figaro, testified that he did not believe Calmette had any letters he intended to publish after the "Thy Jo" note which was directly responsible for the shooting.

"I was standing in the corridor shortly after 6 o'clock. A woman dressed in black passed me. Her hands were concealed in a muff. I saw her enter Calmette's office and within five or six seconds six shots rang out."

Madame Nervous

Mme. Caillaux was nervous, but managed to get some sleep last night following her ordeal as a witness, her tellers said today. She declared she was glad it was over.

There was nothing she would not have done to save her husband from further attacks and prevent the publication of additional letters Calmette was supposed to have in his possession, but she did not intend to kill the editor. This she endeavored to impress upon the jury during the relation of her story.

"We would have preferred to renounce our great happiness rather than see our inner lives blazoned to the world. We were reproached for being bourgeois. It is true, I am a bourgeois. I was taught by my poor father that a woman's honor consisted in having her life as open as possible. Last year he told me that a wife who had a lover was without honor. He never would have set foot in my house had he known of my liaison with M. Caillaux."

FIRE DAMAGES BARN

Fire this afternoon destroyed the barn of the L. G. Ormsom livery stable, 616 St. Cloud street. The loss is estimated at $2,000. Fire department No. 2 was called, and extinguished the flames after an hour's work.

M'DERMOTT QUILTS BEFORE INQUIRY

Representative Accused of Being N. A. M. Lobbyist Leaves Two Days Before Action

WILL STAND FOR RE-ELECTION

In Statement to House He Denies All Charges of His Misconduct

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Representative James T. McDermott of Illinois today telegraphed Governor Dunne resigning as a member of congress. In a prepared statement read in the house, McDermott denied charges of misconduct in the "lobby" case.

Escapes Action
McDermott was charged by Col.
Mulhall of the National Association of Manufacturers with being a paid lobbyist for the association. His resignation from the house today came just two days before probable action on the report of the investigating committee. Chairman Floyd planned to ask for consideration of a resolution censuring him Thursday. Representative Nelson proposed a fight for McDermott's expulsion. By resigning today McDermott disposes of any action by the house on the lobby charges. McDermott came from the Stock Yards district of Chicago. He is a candidate for re-election.

The Floyd committee found Mc-Dermott guilty of "gross improprie-ties." Use of his room by agents of the N. A. M. was charged. Seeking loans from local pawn brokers having legislation before congress was also charged. He was also shown to be friendly with a former chief page of the house, who was in the employ of Mulhall and the N.
A. M.

Wants Re-election

McDermott also tendered his resignation to Speaker Clark, and said he would go immediately to his district in Chicago and become a candidate for re-election. He said he was willing to abide by the decision of his constituents.

"Unfortunately, I came to this house a poor man," McDermott's statement read. And he said he left the house a poor man. He said he had been compelled to borrow money while a member. He said he could not boast of the social training and advantage of other members.

"I have been invited to many places in Chicago, and elsewhere that perhaps some members may think above my social station, but I have preferred to associate with the people who sent me to congress and when I am at home in Chicago I am found at my accustomed haunt among my old companions, associating with the men and boys in the great Union Stock Yard, the people I love and want to associate with.
They are open and above board. If they are against you they come to your face to say it. They do not use the brigand method of shooting at you from ambush."

BEAUTIFUL WOMAN FOUND MURDERED

Body of Young Woman Richly Dressed Discovered on Beach at Galveston

GALVESTON, Texas, July 21.— With a bullet hole through her head, and her body half buried in the sand, a beautiful, unidentified white woman was found on the beach just outside the city limits today. The police declared she had been murdered and robbed. They believe her assailant dragged the body to the beach in hopes that the corpse would be washed out with the tide.

A white man was seen near the spot last night.

Apparently not more than 22 years old, the victim wore a white dress and undergarments of fine material, a pair of shoes of the best make and was devoid of jewelry.

PIRATES SELL MITCHELL

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 21.—It was announced today that Mike Mitchell, Pirate right fielder, has been sold to the Washington Americans.

BATHING VENUSES DISTRACT FIREMEN

HAMMOND, Ind., July 21.— Ten summer girls from Chicago who wore dark one piece bathing suits swarmed out of Lake Michigan at Millers Station and looked on while flames attacked Jim Connors' general store.

The volunteer fire department looked on, too. Connors today addressed a letter to the town mayor, blaming the presence of the stunning, stocking-less bathing girls for a $5,000 fire loss. In his official report the chief of the department declared his inability to go get the fire under control was due to "lack of hose."

RUN KURTENACKER FOR THE ASSEMBLY

Gund Brewing Co. Secretary to Be Stalwart Candidate for Republican Nomination

JOHNSON IN SECOND DISTRICT?

May Be Persuaded to Enter the Race There; Convention Idea Is Abandoned Says Barber

That the stalwart republicans will this fall center their efforts on the legislature was indicated today by the dual announcement that Carl Kurtenacker, secretary of the Gund Brewing company, would enter the race as the "regular" republican for the assembly in the First district and that there will be no county ticket.

The Philipp crowd, it is understood, are now endeavoring to get Tom Johnson to make the run for the republican nomination in the Second district.

Both the First and Second assembly districts are now represented by democrats, C. L. Hood holding in the city district, and E. J. Kneen of Bangor in the country.

"Mr. Kurtenacker is our candidate for the assembly," said W. E. Barber, one of Philipp's staunchest supporters, "and today we started circulating his papers."

"We are endeavoring to get Tom Johnson to run for the assembly in the second district and I think he can be persuaded. He is popular and has many friends."

Perhaps the most important announcement of the local stalwarts is
or a county convention.

FOUR MILLIONS OF FUNDS DISAPPEAR

Huge Loss Discovered by California Commission in Calhoun Car Line Funds

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 21.— The California State Railroad commission today began an effort definitely to locate $3,906,000 of the funds of the United Railroads of San Francisco which disappeared prior to the withdrawal by former President Patrick Calhoun of $1,- 096,000 in connection with the financing of his Selano Irrigation project.

The fact that nearly $4,000,000 was missing was revealed by L. R.
Reynolds, auditor of the commission, during the investigation of the company's finances. The Selano transaction was already known but the revelation of the other item caused a sensation.

Madison Progressive Says

Charging that Judge John C. Karel, Milwaukee, is receiving Tory republican support in his campaign for governor, John A. Alyward, Madison, Wilson democrat, today, in a formal statement to the Wisconsin democracy, outlined his position in the state fight.

His statement follows:
"To the democrats of Wisconsin: In response to petitions from William F. Wolfe, E. J. Kneen, Burr Williams, Edward Dempsey, T. J.
Cunningham, Robert S. Crawford and other leading democrats of Wisconsin, urging me to become a candidate for the nomination for governor, I submit the following:
"I have been twice your nominee for governor when there was neither chance for success nor hope for reward."

"Two years ago, at the request of President Wilson, I assumed charge of his primary campaign in Wisconsin. I believe my work and record warranted my candidacy for the senatorship. These petitions acknowledge this. However, they urge me, in behalf of the democracy of the state and the national administration, to forego my choice and worthy ambitions and become a candidate for governor."

In Accord With President
"To deserve or command success, it is essential that the people should firmly believe that our candidates are in full sympathy with the splendid administration of President Wilson and the lofty motive which inspired him. The Tories and the stalwarts have little in common with him. Judge Karel's candidacy in the last campaign, while supported by many loyal democrats, was by general admission decided by the Tory republicans in our primary."

"In common with many other democrats, I voted for Judge Karel in the last election. This was a vote of hope rather than of confidence, as we understood the republican Tory influence which was the controlling factor in his nomination."

Karel Tory Support
"It is significant that the first movement in his present campaign was the circulation of Judge Karel's

THIRD REGIMENT WINS WAR GAME

As Reds They Hold Off Blues This Morning and Save Stores at Camp
Douglas

LOCAL MEN LOAF THIS AFTERNOON

Nothing to Do but Sweat and Play Cards Until Band Concert This Evening

(By Victor Jacobson, special correspondent.)

CAMP DOUGLAS, Wis., July 21.
—(Special.)—With the other companies of the Third regiment, companies B and M of La Crosse came out victorious in the first of the war game problems worked out here this morning.

The problem in tactics was to preserve stores intact at Camp Douglas against the advance of an enemy.

Reds vs. Blues.

The First regiment was designated as the Blues, the Third as the Reds. Two battalions of the Reds were required to hold the Blues in check while the stores—purely theoretical stores—were theoretically loaded on trains and theoretically shipped to a theoretical point outside of the danger zone.

The Blues were stationed three miles out to the northwest when they began their theoretical attack on the Reds to capture the stores.
The didn't capture the theoretical stores, but they did a lot of untheoretical marching and maneuvering, and the two battalions of the Reds did as much or more, keeping them away.

Glorious Victory.
However, 'twas a glorious victory.
Captain R. H. Westcott and the other West Pointers from the regular army said so. They said that the Blues did not even get "warm" on the trail of the theoretical stores.

The Third regiment loafed this afternoon—that is, all but the first and second battalions. Theirs was the job of preparing for a three day hike, starting tomorrow, to the Lemonweir river and return.

This afternoon companies B and M sweated and smoked and played cards. At noon there were a few boxing matches, but the sun was too hot for proper enjoyment of them. This evening there will be a band concert by the Third Regiment band.
That has become a regular evening custom, and the camp has come to look forward to the event. The Third Regiment drum corps has also made a hit for itself.

Made a Scout.

William Torrance, private of company M, has been appointed to a new body just organized—the Mounted Scouts. They will be kept on this detail for the rest of the encampment.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Preachers who insist that there are no mistakes in the Bible are among the greatest foes of Christianity, declares Dr. Washington Gladden, noted Columbus, Ohio, divine, in an article in the current issue of the

HUERTA SAILS FROM REPUBLIC

Last Words as He Flees from Mexico Declare Friendship for Villa, Carranza and Wilson

U. S. TO SUPPORT CARRANZA

Rebel Leader Agrees to Concessions and Will Be Recognized by United States

PUERTO, Mexico, July 21.—Mexico has probably seen the last of General Victoriano Huerta. As it pleased him to say when in power that he was "only an old Indian," so one of the last remarks of the deposed dictator last night as he left his native country, an exile, was that he was "only one of the sons of Mexico."

Sails in Silence

General Huerta, General Blanquet, his minister of war, and their families are today en route to Kingston, Jamaica, aboard the German cruiser Dresden. As the warship steamed away there were no cheers. A detachment from the famous Twenty-ninth infantry presented arms as the Dresden started. This was the only incident to indicate that the Dresden was sailing on an unusual mission.

The departure of Huerta last night came as a surprise. Threats of attack by the constitutionalists led his advisors to suggest an early departure.

Senora Huerta and the children had been weeping. Huerta, however, talked with the newspapermen, paying his compliments to President Wilson, Gen. Carranza and Gen. Villa, by saying they were his best friends.

"I am merely one of the sons of Mexico," he said. "But they have advised me. Statements that I am an enemy of the United States are lies. I admire the American people and respect Wilson as president of that people."

U. S. to Back Carranza

WASHINGTON, July 21.—That Carranza has agreed to make material concessions to acting President Carbajal and that the United States will give him its unqualified support was admitted today in official quarters. This means that he will have the aid of the United States and the South American governments in opposing any counter-revolution, which started by Villa or any other malcontent.

While the administration considers it too early to make any statements regarding policy, it is admitted that if Carranza and Carbajal reach an agreement it will be considered that the terms arranged at Niagara Falls have been complied with and there will be immediate recognition of the provisional government.

All obligations incurred by Huerta after October 10, 1913, are to be repudiated by the new government.
Some are admittedly legal and will be honored as an "act of grace."

To Meet Rival Generals

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, July 21.— Gen. Francisco Villa is preparing to depart today for the south with several thousand troops, to effect a junction at Queretaro with the armies of Generals Pablo Gonzales and Gen. Alvaro Obregon for a triumphal occupation of Mexico City.

Villa will not take his entire army south, because of the necessity of protecting the north against the forces of Pascual Orozco, whom he considers a menace to the peace of Mexico.

Reports reached here today that the Vasquez Gomez forces are joining with Gen. Emiliano Zapata, revolutionary leader of central Mexico, for support in a new revolution.
In the past Zapata has declared his support of the Vasquez Gomez plan of settling the agrarian problem.

Spain Sends Agent

EL PASO, Texas, July 21.—Accepting Gen. Venustiano Carranza's suggestion that foreign nations send representatives to deal directly with the constitutional national government in matters regarding their citizens and possessions, Spain has appointed Manuel Medina, counselor of the Spanish embassy in Washington, as confidential agent. He arrived here today.

One of Medina's first acts will be the settlement of the claims of his countrymen against the constitutional government. He will also arrange for the return of the Spaniards Villa expelled from northern Mexico.

GIRL STOPS CARS TO GET TRANSFER

CHICAGO, July 21.—Refused a transfer because she was on the wrong line, a pretty stenographer did a Pankhurst stunt on Cottage Grove avenue today by planting herself firmly in front of the street car and daring the motorman to run her down. After ten cars had formed behind the blockade, the motorman appealed to a policeman.
"G'wan," said the copper to the motorman. "Compromise by giving the lady a transfer and her nickle back or I'll run you in for obstructin' traffic."
The motorman obeyed.

Officers Search Surround-

Clue; Arrest Is Mo-

A search is on today for Clyde Bradford, an employe of the Empire saloon, 117 South Third street, alleged to have stolen the check book of John J. Murphy, his employer, and with having passed two checks for $8.00 each bearing Murphy's name.

The "Wet Goods" saloon on North Third street and the Corcoran hotel are two places the police have learned, which were victimized with the alleged fraudulent checks.

Bradford, according to other employes of the place, Mr. Murphy's checkbook was kept in a roll top desk back of the bar.

The checks passed bore the name of Murphy thus making the alleged offense forgery.

The entire county was scoured last night by the police and towns in all directions from La Crosse were notified to "pick up" Bradford.

The police expect little difficulty in capturing Bradford owing to the fact that his face was pitted, probably from small pox.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

A Fashionable Tournament In Animal Land.

THE children had been to see a tennis tournament during the afternoon, and they were full of the wonderful playing they had seen. Of course they had to tell daddy all about it, but daddy thought that he had a much nicer tournament to tell them about.

"What sort of a tournament was it?" asked Jack.

"It was a tennis tournament, just like the one you saw this afternoon, but I think the players in the tournament I saw were more interesting."

"Who played in the tournament you saw, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"Oh, no," said daddy. "You certainly wouldn't call children interesting players, would you?"

Both the children laughed heartily at that, for they knew daddy thought children were quite the nicest and most interesting things that ever happened.

"My players were real players," continued daddy, "and I don't believe you will ever guess who they were."

"Rabbits," said Jack. "They ought to be good players, as they are so quick."

"My players were hardly what you might call good players, but they were interesting players. No; I don't believe you could possibly guess, so I will have to tell you. The toads played against the frogs."

"In the first place, there was a large audience present. The frogs and toads had heard that tennis tournaments were the fashion in the summer."

"Really you probably are surprised at such unfashionable looking creatures caring so much for fashion, but then that often is the way. They love to do the right thing at the right time, and they had a special place for the tournament, with a grand stand of nice, big, round logs."

"All the onlookers were dressed in their best. The frogs were principally dressed in emerald green, for that is a color which they consider very becoming. The toads were shaded brown costumes for the most part, though some of them were very fine speckled black suits."

"The players were two toads and two frogs. They played doubles, you see, for they had heard that every fine player always had a special partner. They went straight into the finals, too, for they said that they must have the excitement right away."

"During the game the players stopped to drink lemonade, and the onlookers had refreshments all the time. Somehow they thought it was very appetizing to watch tennis, and they kept nibbling at the things to eat and sipping the lemonade steadily."

"The toads won the tournament and received fine stone cups for prizes."

They Were Interesting Players.

CHEAP MEAT DAY GONE FOREVER

Arthur Meeker, Packer, Says Prices Will Never Return to Level of 20 Years Ago

CHICAGO, July 21.—The day of cheap meat has gone and will never return, Arthur Meeker of Armour & Co. said today.

"Meat prices may fall slightly next summer, because they are abnormally high just now and will continue high throughout the winter," said Meeker, "but they will never reach the level of ten or twenty years ago. However, I do not believe that the price of meat, during this generation at least, will ever advance to a point where it will be only a delicacy for the rich."

"Meat will never return to the old prices because the supply has not kept step with the demand. There are 11,000,000 less beef cattle in the United States today than there were twenty years ago. At the same time the population has increased 22,000,000."

"That is only one of the factors entering into the advance of meat prices. Free ranging in the west is now a thing of the past. Towns and farms have taken the place of public ranges."

REPLIES TO CRITICS

WILSON TAKES EXCEPTION TO CHARGE GENERAL DAM BILL IS NOT IN INTERESTS OF PEOPLE

WASHINGTON, July 21.—President Wilson took exception to the allegation that the general dam bill, agreed on at a series of conferences at the White house, is in the interests of any others than the people themselves. He objected to criticism that the bill, which is a consolidation of pending measures, is in opposition to the fundamentals of conservation, and called attention to the fact that Representatives Leno and Stevens, both ardent leaders for conservation, aided in shaping the measure.

The president, in explaining the general nature of the legislation, said that so far as the eastern rivers are concerned, the government simply surrenders the right to prohibit obstruction of navigable waters, but in the west, where conservation is most needed, the government surrenders property of value in parting with the water needed to transform arid lands into productive zones.

So far as making a selection for the vacancy on the supreme court bench to succeed the late Justice Lurton is concerned, President Wilson said today he does not expect to take the matter up for some days.

WINS BET—IN HOSPITAL

MINNEAPOLIS, July 21.—Albert Williams, a professional Marathon racer, is in a hospital today after running a distance of fifteen miles, climbing a 90 foot smokestack, walking around its edge and then falling thirty feet to the ground while climbing down it. Williams was burned about the legs and arms by the heat of the smokestack. He won a bet of $50 from Lewis Otterman of this city, by the stunt.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

A $20,000 Widow

BY CARL JENKINS

Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

In a village like Rawsonville, which had about a thousand inhabitants, what does the widow of a carpenter turn to for a living when he is killed by a fall and hasn't left $10 in cash behind him?

She must support herself by her needle or by day's work. For a few weeks she will get a sort of sympathy. The minister will call and tell her Providence intended it so and she must bear up under it; Deacon Smithers will lean over the gate and tell what a ripping old time the angels are having up in heaven; women will drop in and sniff and snuff and hope she will get along some way, and then everybody feels he has done his duty, and she can live on crusts half her time.

Mrs. John Baker was less than forty years old when her husband was brought home dead, and there wasn't the faintest hope she would ever marry again. How John Baker ever fell in love with and married her was always a puzzle to people. It would have been hard to find a plain woman in a week's hunt. In addition to that, she had a lop-shoulder and a stiff knee. That she was good-natured and no complainer was the most praise ever given her.

The widow washed and scrubbed and earned a dollar here and a dollar there, and she got along somehow. Three years had gone by since the tragedy, when one day she dropped into the office of the local weekly paper for some old newspapers to lay under a carpet. It wasn't her carpet, but she was cleaning house that day and another woman. The editor had just added two new subscribers to his list and taken in two additional dollars for printing some auction bills, and he was sure that this was a good world to live in. He asked the widow how she got along, and when she replied that she couldn't complain, he said to himself:

"Here is a poor devil of a woman who is taking adversity as it comes and making no kicks. It is in my power to aid her, and I'll be hanged if I don't do it!"

And he turned to her with: "See here, Mrs. Baker, I want to ask you a question, and you needn't feel embarrassed to answer. Would you marry again if a good man asked for your hand?"

"But I'm homely and lame, sir," she blushing replied.

"Yet a good man might want you," he said.

"Where would he come from?" was the shy query.

"No one can tell. Can I take it that you'll encourage him when he turns up?"

"I shan't turn him outdoors," she laughed.

"I have a scheme, Mrs. Baker. Are you a woman that can keep a secret?"

"Suppose I announce in the paper that a brother of yours has died and left you $20,000."

"But I have no brother,"

"Will you feel obliged to tell folks that you haven't?"

"N-o-o, but where would the money come in? Folks would want to see it."

"Then let 'em wait. I want to state that you have a legacy of $20,000."

A NURSE TAKES DOCTOR'S ADVICE

And is Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Euphemia, Ohio.—"Because of total ignorance of how to care for myself when verging into womanhood, and from taking cold when going to school, I suffered from a displacement, and each month I had severe pains and nausea which always meant a lay-off from work for two to four days from the time I was 16 years old."

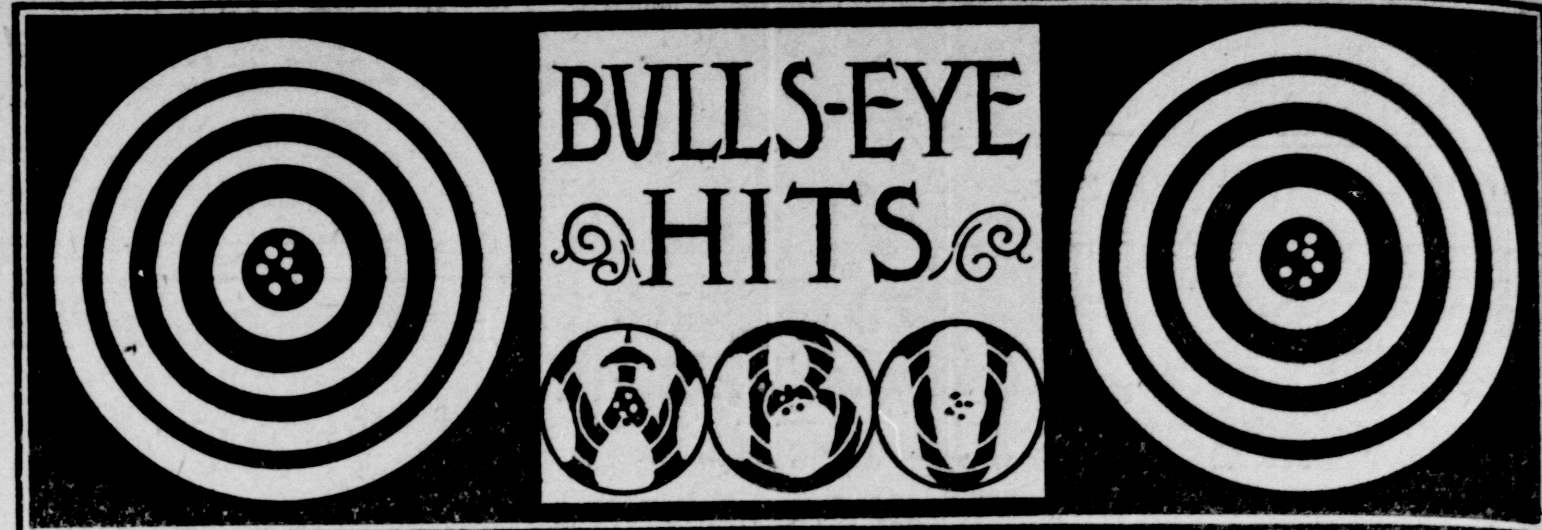

"I went to Kansas to live with my sister and while there a doctor told me of the Pinkham remedies but I did not use them then as my faith in patent medicines was limited. After my sister died I came home to Ohio to live and that has been my home for the last 18 years."

"The Change of Life came when I was 47 years old and about this time I saw my physical condition plainly described in one of your advertisements. Then I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot tell you or anyone the relief it gave me in the first three months. It put me right where I need not lay off every month and during the last 18 years I have not paid out two dollars to a doctor, and have been blest with excellent health for a woman of my age and I can thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it."

"Since the Change of Life is over I have been a maternity nurse and being wholly self-supporting I cannot over estimate the value of good health. I have now earned a comfortable little home just by sewing and nursing. I have recommended the Compound to many with good results, as it is excellent to take before and after childbirth."

000, and that you may marry again."

"I shouldn't like to lie, sir."

"You needn't. Just keep still and answer no questions."

"But you you be lying, sir?"

"In newspaper work we call it stretching the truth. Lands alive, widow, if we printed nothing but what we could swear to we could not fill a column in week."

"But don't get me into any trouble."

"Not a bit of it. You read what I have to say about you in Friday's paper, and you are neither to affirm nor deny it."

The next issue of the paper astonished a thousand people, though it had only 250 regular subscribers. It stated that the well known and well liked Widow Baker had lost her only brother by death, but although they had been estranged for years he had left her the handsome legacy of $20,000. She would put the sum at interest and continue to live as she had since her husband's death. Gossip had it that she might marry again, but it was the editorial opinion of the editor that only a mighty good man could win her.

"There, I have done one good deed in this world if I never do another," said the editor to himself as he read the article in print.

"My, but while I know it to be a lie, it does read like the solemn truth!" exclaimed the Widow Baker as she read and re-read it.

The number of callers she had in the next three days equaled the number of women in the town, with a few men thrown in for good measure. Each one congratulated her and hoped she would return their call right soon, and each one went away with envy in their heart. They felt that she had somehow wronged them in meeting with good luck.

The minister was one of the men that called, and almost the first thing he said was: "Well, Sister Baker, you can now donate enough cash to pay for the painting and repairing of the meeting house, and if you feel like doing anything for the heathen now is your opportunity."

Deacon Gordon came in rather slyly, and his tone was confidential as he said: "Look out for them darned Wall street sharks!"

"Yes, Deacon."

"And silver mines."

"Yes."

"And don't donate a dum cent to the church."

"No."

"Nor to the dum heathen."

"No."

"But lend it all to me on 5 per cent interest."

"I will see about it."

The editor had figured on calls from widowers outside the town, and he was right. Indeed, there was but one eligible one in the village, and he called around to say to the Widow Baker: "Say, widder, why in thunder didn't you let a body know?"

"Why, how could I?" she replied.

"You ought to have done it, you had. I allus thought mighty well of you, but was told you had made up your mind not to marry again. It was only last Sunday night that I asked the Widder White if she would have me, and she said she would, and now if I back out she'll sue me for breach of what-do-you-call-it."

Yes, widowers came from various parts of the county, and from further away. There was no other class to come. Young men did not want a middle-aged wie, and the old bachelors did not want any at all. Nothing was said in the newspaper article as to Mrs. Baker's personal appearance, and for some reason every widower that called expected to see a sprightly, good-looking woman.

Therefore, when they bumped up against the real thing there was a surprise party. With most of the callers it went like this:

"Good afternoon. Is this the Widow Baker?"

"Yes, sir."

"Can I speak to you for a minute?"

"You can, sir. Walk in and take a chair. Fine weather we are having."

Not until she was seated herself did the caller get a good look at her, and then he left the house without a word or had the courage to ask if her house was troubled with rats. There was $20,000 there, but it didn't look like 30 cents to them. There were others who would remain for awhile and say:

"Widder, if you had a husband you would trust him, I take it?"

"I trusted my other."

"And you'd have confidence in his judgment?"

"Very likely."

"That is right. You'd figger that your husband could handle them twenty thousand better than you could, wouldn't you?"

"I might, after three or four years."

"Yes, I see. My wife always left everything to me. She was glad to do so."

"I have heard that some wives were that way."

"Well, widder, I may call again. This is a matter that requires darned serious thought."

"I agree with you."

The dozenth widower called on the editor instead of the widow, and he said:

"You must know this Widow Baker?"

"Sure."

"Nice woman?"

"She is that."

"How's her looks?"

"She's as homely as a ram's horn."

"Good! How about her shape?"

"Hasn't got any more than a bag of potatoes, and is lame besides."

"Good worker?"

"Can't be beat."

"I want a wife, but them $20,000 keeps me away. I'm a plain, everyday farmer, and that money would always be raising a row. If she hadn't a dollar I'd go and see her."

"Go right along," replied the editor. "That $20,000 is all in your eye."

"You don't mean it?"

"Hasn't got a dollar to her name!"

"Good! I've had two wives, and both ran away with tin peddlers. I want something this time that will scare them off."

He got it, and in a very unconventional way, but all reports are to the effect that they are living happily together, and even that Cupid has been seen flying over the farmhouse.

WAY ROUNDIn my own state, with a population of 300,000 less than that of Wisconsin, state government cost us last year, nearly $2,000,000 more than the cost of the state government in Wisconsin; in 1911 Minnesota state government cost about $4,000,000 more than the cost in Wisconsin, and in 1912 about $2,- 000,000 more.—From speech by Hon. Sydney Anderson.Recently a primary election was held in Minnesota and the republican candidates for governor were Eberhardt and Lee. Lee made his campaign against Eberhardt, now governor, on the ground that taxes there were excessive, and Eberhardt was snowed under by about 15,000 majority, notwithstanding that natural conditions and circumstances all were in his favor. He is a Swede.
That counts prodigiously in Minnesota, and Lee, who swamped him by some 15,000, had no prestige of nationality whatever to help him. He is nothing but a plain, simple, native born American; but Eberhardt's nationality and his official machine availed nothing against the convincing charge of ruinous taxation.— Madison Democrat.The Milwaukee Sentinel quotes both the above utterances, and "puts two and two" together to show, by analogy, what will happen in Wisconsin in November.Wrong, as usual. Sydney Anderson, who said that Minnesota taxes are heavier than Wisconsin taxes in proportion to population, has just been renominated for congress in the First Minnesota district by a vote for 10,000 to 4,000. Anderson is an uncompromising progressive. Lee was nominated for governor by the Minnesota republicans, over Eberhardt. Lee is an outspoken progres-sive, Eberhardt a standpatter. While Eberhardt is a reactionary, the old legislature was largely progressive, and shared with the governor the responsibility for state taxes. The returns show the renomination of most of the old progressive members of the legislature and the nomination of other progressives to take the place of many standpatters in the legislature. It is true that Eberhardt is a Swede; and that Minnesota is strongly Scandinavian, but in Minnesota, as elsewhere, the Scandinavians are a studious people and represent the most progressive type of Americanism.Cold comfort, gentlemen! Cold comfort!WHEN A WOMAN RUNS THE JAILSKatherine Bement Davis has been running the Department of Correction of New York City for about six months. When a woman was placed in charge of this work by Mayor John Purroy Mitchell, many eyes were turned on her in curiosity to see what a woman could do with a job of this sort. The eyes are still on Dr. Davis. The owners dare not let them stray for a day at a time lest they miss what this particular woman may do next.Her first step was a typically feminine one. Any woman going into a household previously tenanted by men throws up her hands and says, "Mercy me! What a looking house!" Then she hunts the scrub pail, and housecleaning is the order of the day.There were a great many evils that needed to be cleaned out. Dr.
Davis got right to work at some of the most obvious ones, and while putting one room into shape she planned ahead for the others.One of the first things was to separate the women from the men in the city workhouse. Overcrowding and immorality had long been charged. Dr. Davis did not sit around to lament conditions. She changed them.
When the women had been moved to a temporary detention house plans were ready for a modern women's jail and court soon to be built on the site of the old Tenderloin police station. This will be absolutely fireproof, sanitary, with every room above the fourth floor accessible to the sunlight. First offense criminals will be kept separate from old offenders.Dr. Davis, while particular as to the interior arrangements, is not strong for architectural frills. "A plain building," she says, "will answer the purpose as well as an elaborate one. I am opposed to spending money for luxurious quarters for lawbreakers." From which one may deduce the fact that the woman commissioner leans harder to sense than to sentimentality.Huerta having fled, the United States must now share with Mexico that historic worry over "what to do with our ex-presidents."

track was ready to start. William 2:11 trot completes the day's card.

officials are working on the theory that the man was murdered. The leg had been cut off by a train, but the throat was slashed with a knife.

True Chivalry
An old gentleman, always polite to ladies, was asserting one day that he had never seen a really ugly woman.
"Sir, look at me, and confess that I'm truly ugly."
"Madam," he replied, "like the rest of your sex, you are an angel fallen from the skies; but it was your misfortune, rather than your fault, that you happened to alight on your nose."—Chicago Journal.

In the Slums
They sat out on the old pier.
"Me beau is so romantic," said Shanty Mamie, rapturously. "Why only last night he looked at me dreamily like real poets do!"
"Drink to me only with wine eyes." Ain't that the dandy, though?" Tenement Susie turned up her nose.
"What a cheap skate!" she jeered. "Why, a feller that couldn't say 'Drink to me only with soda water' an' then treat you to two glasses ain't worth standin' room at a truant officers' picnic."

Biting the Dust Never had the forty horsepower engine run better. The big touring car raced along the road raising the dust in clouds, and flitting past millions with an easy regularity almost monotonous.
"Ah," gasped the driver, as the car battled with the wind which swept the high ground, whence for miles around the surrounding country could be seen, "this is the place for view—ah, my boy? Have you ever come across such a landscape as that before?"
Almost lost in the roaring of the wind came his friend's hoarse grumble:
"Never! I've already had a good deal more than I can swallow."

All Bunk
"I've been bunked on everything I undertook this week."
"Go to a show and forget your troubles."
"I tried that last night and got bunked again."

He Had Heard of Them
It was company field training. The cook his breakfast with a badly made how to make a quick cooking fire, saying:

"Look at the time you are wast-

I often had to hunt my breakfast. I used to go about two miles in the jungle, shoot my food, skin or pluck it, then cook and eat it, and return to the camp under the half hour." Then he wisely added: "Of course, you have heard of the Philippines."
"Yes, sir," replied the young soldier; "and also of Ananias and George Washington."

MANY CRANBERRIES.

APPLETON, Wis., July 21.—An extra large cranberry crop is expected this year, following the failure of the blight to get in its usual destructive work. Just now the blossoms are departing and the berries are forming. The growers usually look for half their crop to be lost in the blight. This year it has not shown up and they expect fully fifty per cent more berries than last year. Notwithstanding the outlook, it is believed that the price will be fully as high as last year.

The Great New Historical RomanceJohn
O' JamestownBy VAUGHN KESTER
Copyright, The Bobbe-Merrill Company

Now, though I have no proof of what I say, yet I have never thought otherwise than that it would have been far better for John Smith—aye, and for the colony, too—had we left them behind. For just at dawn on the morning of the day following our departure, a keg of gunpowder, which, either by accident or design, had been placed in the stern of the boat where Smith was sleeping, exploded with frightful force, rending his body and setting fire to his clothes, so that he threw himself out of the boat into the river, where he was like to drown.

The noise of the explosion, and his cry of mortal agony as he came awake, roused us all. I made out my friend struggling in the water alongside, his face streaked with powder stains and distorted with suffering.
Calling to my startled comrades, I sprang to his rescue.

We lifted him over the side of the boat, not comprehending what it was that had happened; and then as he came clear of the water we saw his torn side where the force of the powder had spent itself. To know that he suffered the keenest agony one had but to look into his drawn face.

It is true there was lighted match aboard the boat, and it may have been that the fire got to the powder without any man's knowledge or desiring; but whether the result of accident or purposed villainy, the consequences to Smith were the same.
All in a moment he was reduced to this pitiful, shattered wreck we had lifted from the river.

We made him as comfortable as could be in the stern of the boat, binding up his hurts with strips torn from our clothing. When we had done, he took me by the hand.

"And you love me, Dick, make what haste you can down stream!" He sought to smile, but the pain which was never to leave him for long days thereafter twisted his lips.
"How did it happen?" I asked.

"The good God knows! I accuse no one—only get me quickly to James Town—"

And with this began our heavy toil at the oars, for with the river's turnings we had near a hundred miles to go, and we drove the boat onward day and night with never a pause. Now we fought both wind and tide, and then wind and tide served our turn, helping us down toward the broad water. And through those long hours, which must have been eternities to him, Smith, all uncomplaining, lay under the shelter we had raised above him. Then, at last across the wide reach of dancing water and beneath a hot September sun, James Town came into sight. And never had its log huts seemed so fair a refuge!

We carried John Smith ashore on the stretcher we had improvised and bore him to his own quarters.
Quickly the news of our return went abroad in James Town, and we had scarcely got him within doors when Lieutenant Percy appeared.

"Do you suffer much, Captain Smith?" he asked, going to the wounded man's side.
"I doubt not my days here are at an end," said Smith.

"God forbid!" cried Percy, drawing back, for what with Smith's words and appearance, he understood him to mean that his hurts were mortal.

Smith went on.
"I need skillful surgery if I am ever to have the use of myself, and for that I must go to England when the ships sail. Yet some honest man, Percy, must be left at the head of affairs or the rogues will come to the front."

"And you think I am that honest man, Captain Smith?" said Percy.
"Give me leave to think the matter over."

Then we three spoke together of the accident, and presently John Smith, weighed down by utter weariness, sank into a sort of stupor, and Percy motioned me to follow him from the room.

"What need to tell him, Farraday, that those nimble knaves, Ratcliffe and Archer, are at liberty; you had not been gone five days when their friends accomplished their release, and now they are breathing threats against Smith for their unlawful arrest, as they call it. Martin is back from Nansemond, and those of his men who have escaped the clubs of the savages will soon follow his discreet example. John Smith might bring order to James Town, but a lesser man is sure to fail."

quarters while he was speaking.
Soon we should be caught in the winter's grip, with some five hundred of us to be fed through the long months until we came to another harvest. I saw that the realization of this was keen in Percy's mind. As we both knew, he would be a man, and a good one, who could carry the troubled fortunes of the colony to a right issue.

"Whatever is the result here, John Smith must go home when the ships sail," I said at hazard.

"True—which means, Master Farraday, that I must be content to take up his work." And he gave me his hand as I parted from him at his door.

With a heart heavy as lead, I turned back toward my quarters. I seemed to get a foretaste of what was before us when Smith should go.
The kindly gentleman I had just quitted, with the fever of that low shore ever in his blood, so that for days at a time he could neither go nor stand, had all the value that an honest man must ever have; but James Town called for something more than good intentions from him who would rule it. A strong hand and a heavy fist he must have, with a high courage to take him beyond the sticking at trifles.

I was before my own door now, and I paused for an instant, but no sound came from within, so I put my hand upon the wooden latch and the door yielded easily and noiselessly to my touch. As I peered into the room I caught sight of a man standing by my friend's bedside. It might readily have been any one of a score I could have named who were John Smith's trusty partisans, but ere I spoke I saw the unknown raise a hand and the hand go out toward the still figure on the bed. On the instant I hurled myself forward, my fingers closing about the cold steel of a pistol barrel. This I wrenched from the would-be assassin, and before he could speak or cry out I had felled him with a blow. The noise of his heavy fall roused Smith.

"Dick," he muttered, as he came awake.
"Here is one who would have killed you while you slept," I said as I set my foot on the prostrate villain. "I was just in time to spare you a pistol shot."

"Do they hate me so much as that?" he said.

PROBE MURDER TALE

FORT SMITH, July 21.—Authorities today are investigating the story of Samuel C. Thomas, a mine employee, that strikers shot and killed J. W. Sylesberry and John Baskins, mine guards, and burned their bodies in a log cabin fire after seven company employes had been captured in the battle at Prairie Creek. Two charred skulls were found in the cabin ruins. The two men have been missing since Friday.

DENY SPENCER REHEARING

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., July 21.— Henry Spencer, convicted murderer of Mrs. Mildred Allison-Rexroat, a Chicago tango teacher, will be han-gled at Wheaton, Ill., July 31, unless Governor Dume commutes the death sentence to life imprisonment. Four justices of the supreme court of Illinois, sitting here today, denied application of Spencer's attorneys for a re-hearing.

VITAL FORCE

Disease germs are on every hand. They are in the very air we breathe. A system "run down" is a prey for them. One must have vital force to withstand them. Vital force depends on digestion—on whether or not food nourishes—on the quality of blood coursing through the body.

DR. PIERCE'S
Golden Medical Discovery

Strengthens the weak stomach. Gives good digestion. Enlivens the sluggish liver. Feeds the starved nerves. Again full health and strength return. A general upbuilding enables the heart to pump like an engine running in oil. The vital force is once more established to full power.
Year in and year out for over forty years this great health-restoring remedy has been spreading throughout the entire world—because of its ability to make the sick well and the weak strong. Don't despair of "being your old self again." Give this vegetable remedy a trial—Today —Now. You will soon feel "like new again." Sold in liquid or tablet form by

TO CONVENTION

Dr. B. F. Holmes and Dr. H. D. Dr. Patterson will act as toastmaster at the banquet tomorrow evening.

Doctor's Boyish Face Reveals Skin Renewer

I heard the other day a story of the physician with so admirable a skin that all his women patients asked his secret. He told one, who generously told others, that knowing the remarkable absorbent property of ordinary mercurized wax, he concluded this substance would make an excellent complexion renewer and preserver. Knowing the wax could do no injury, he began using it after shaving. He soon observed that the old, withered, colorless cuticle was being gradually absorbed and replaced by younger, healthier skin. This was the simple secret of the silver-haired doctor with the boyish face. The secret became public property. Now women everywhere use mercurized wax, applying it nightly like cold cream, washing it off mornings—continuing until the complexion is entirely renovated. An ounce of this wax, procurable at any druggist's, will banish the worst complexion.

Another valuable rejuvenator used by this doctor was a wrinkle-remover and preventive in the form of a face bath, made by dissolving an ounce of exfolite in a half pint witch hazel. This also has become famous.—Fashion Review.

SALOONS CLOSED UNDER BAKER LAW

Two Hundred and Twelve Milwaukee Saloons Are Closed by the Police

MILWAUKEE, July 21.—Two hundred and twelve saloons in Milwaukee, licensed heretofore upon affidavits of closing of other saloons, which affidavits have been declared illegal by the supreme court, will be closed today by the chief of police. Chief Janssen notified the saloonkeepers yesterday afternoon that every saloon not licensed by Tuesday would be closed by him. The saloonkeepers talked saloons until nearly 10 o'clock, and then failed to grant the licenses amid a session that was as dramatic as any the oldest city official can recall.

After the session Ald. Webe and Ad. Muth clashed, threatening a personal encounter. A policeman walked between them.

The test vote came on Ald. Greene's motion to recall the affidavit list from the license committee.

"I meant practically that the saloonkeepers rejected now are in good standing before the common council, thereby not jeopardizing their opportunities for obtaining a license should they be able to buy out a saloon that is in good standing under the Baker law," he said.

"I am satisfied," said Attorney Walter Bender, defending the Baker law.

"The fight has just begun," said Attorney Lester Manson, representing the affidavit saloons.

EAU CLAIRE STILL HUNTS FOR FORGER

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., July 21.—Local officers today had not given up hope of capturing Harry W. Guirl, alias A. H. Stewart, alias F. W. Cameron and alias Alfred Stewart, wanted here for uttering forged checks. Last week he passed a check on a landlord for $28.60. The check was made out on the Laursen Automatic Pump company and was signed with the name of the secretary of that company.

It is supposed that he crawled through the transom into the company's offices during the noon hour. Added to the cleverly forged signature, Stewart used the check stamping machine to add to its appearance of being genuine.

TY COBB SIDESTEPS

DETROIT, Mich., July 21.—The absence of Ty Cobb, the greatest of the Tiger stars from the game at present, due to the fact that he has an injured hand has enabled him to side-step very gracefully the question of whether he will be on a strike if the baseball players' fraternity goes out tomorrow as they threaten to do. Cobb refused absolutely to give any answer when questioned as to whether he would strike or remain loyal to his employer.

Noon.—There was a sharp advance during the early part of the second hour, but by noon the market had again relapsed into dullness.

2 p. m.—The market was quiet during the early afternoon, stocks in general holding their advances well, although there seemed to be a disposition to await the rate decision. The stock market closed strong.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, July 21.—Bullish cables from Liverpool, where the market had discouraging news regarding the Russian crop, forced a sharp advance in wheat today. Prices for all months were 1 cent over last night's closing figures at the end of the forenoon session.

Corn started steady but advanced on stronger cable prices, gaining ¼ to ¾. Return of hot weather to portions of the corn belt was another bull factor. Oats was ¼ to ¾ higher today, sympathizing with the stronger tone in other grains.

Provisions were quiet and firm.

WANT ROUGH TRIALS

NEW YORK, July 21.—Word from England that the Shamrock IV which is on her way to America under her own sails, has behaved remarkably well in rough weather, gave American yachtsmen an added argument today for an extension of the trial race scheduled for the three cup defenders. None of the American candidates has been tested in rough weather.

LOOK AT IT—ITS FILLED WITH THE
REAL TOBACCO CHEW

MEN & learning the truth about chewing tobacco.

"Right-Cut" is the Real Tobacco Chew. A clean, small chew satisfies you.

Leaves a clean after-taste in the mouth—not the thick, foggy taste that the ordinary chew forces on a man. That's one of the reasons why men are so eager to tell their friends about "Right-Cut."

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

If your dealer does not sell it, send us 10c. in stamps for a pouch of "Right-Cut" Chewing Tobacco.

Reports are to the effect that Gilmore has but one regret—that his face is not wider so he could stretch his smile a little more.

In addition to talking strike several ball games were played yesterday it being the general impression that players and magnates get their money in that manner.

The interior of the American league standing shook itself up somewhat. Boston ousted Washington from third place by beating Detroit and St. Louis eased in ahead of Chicago by twice taking the number of the Yankees.

Big Jeff Tesreau held Cincinnati to two hits, shutting them out. In the meantime the Cubs grabbed off a game from the Phillies and the Giant lead remains unchanged.

Boston and the Pirates had a terrific cellar engagement, the Braves winning when Cooper cracked in the

A ninth inning rally netted the Brooklyn Dodgers four runs against the Cards, but it was one shy of knotting the score.

It took 16 innings to settle the Detroit-Boston argument and Tris Speaker did the settling. A smash to left as two were out scored Leonard with the winning run.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 21—"Ping" Bodie, occasional fence buster for the White Sox of Chicago, may become a Brewer, according to statements by local magnates. Comiskey is said to be considering trading "Ping" for "Happy" Felch, a Milwaukee player and also an occasional fence buster.
